Thermal and SPA

- Grotta Giusti is the largest natural thermal grotto in Europe. It is a millenary cave, still intact and breathtaking, that extends for over two hundred metres in the resort's subsoil.
- A true natural paradise divided into three areas: Paradise, Purgatory and Hell, with temperatures ranging from 28°C to 34°C. The steam released is beneficial and therapeutic. Among the stalactites and stalagmites, the large rock vaults create rooms where you can stop for a natural steam bath. At the bottom of the cave is the Limbo, a crystalline lake of warm thermal waters, with a constant temperature of 36°C.

Thermal pools

- The thermal waters flow out warm and pure from the hydrothermal aquifer of Montalbano, where they are enriched with precious minerals and trace elements. They are used in the very same state they are in when they bubble up from the springs, with no chemical or physical treatments.
- The Grotta Giusti thermal pool has a new covered area of 310 sqm, the Bioaquam Pavilion, with tempered glass walls and sliding panels, retractable ceiling, heated stoneware floor, LED lights and double “filter” entrance to keep the cold outside during the winter season. Grotta Giusti Day Spa awaits you.
- Immerse yourself in the thermal waters of outdoor pools at Grotta Giusti. The main swimming pool is 750 m² in size, and features some of the latest fixtures to help you relax and unwind, including a series of four-spout hydro-massage jets and the natural waterfall massage.
- The water in large bath is rich in bicarbonate, sulphate, calcium and magnesium, which is beneficial to the body. It also features 40 hydro-massage stations for a relaxing massage around every corner.
- Roman baths. Advanced technology recreates the ancient Roman baths, where the gentle heat makes you sweat slowly and deeply. The maximum temperature remains at a comfortable 40°C and is accompanied by a maximum humidity of 40%.
- Sauna Circuit. Begin with a "gentle sauna" that maintains a temperature of no more than 60°C and a relative humidity of up to 60%. Progress to the next sauna, where the temperature rises to 90°C and the relative humidity reduces to 20%.
- The multisensory showers. To help restore the body's natural balance after a session in the sauna or steam room, the multisensory tropical rain and cold mist showers use the temperature of the water, the intensity of the water jets and the sparkling light to regenerate the body.
- Ice Fountain. An ice fountain, a real burst of cold that restores balance and energy to the body after a sauna or steam bath.
