About Hotel

Nestled in the enchanting expanse of Shaviyani Atoll, Fairmont Maldives' Sirru Fen Fushi is more than a personal retreat. Exuding the allure of a 'secret water island', as it is known to the local community, it sparkles like a pearl in the Indian Ocean.

- The resort unveils itself as a haven, its pristine white beaches dotted with swaying palm trees, embraced by the turquoise waters of a vast 600-acre lagoon that gracefully transitions into the serene blue of the boundless horizon.

- At its heart, Fairmont Maldives Sirru Fen Fushi unveils the longest infinity pool in the Maldives. This pool leads to the Coralarium, a groundbreaking underwater art installation designed by Jason deCaires Taylor and celebrated as the first coral regeneration project in the Maldives.
- The resort's collection of 120 luxury villas is a seamless fusion of chic, understated Maldivian rustic elegance. Champagne woods, coral-inspired rugs and bamboo glass chandeliers weave an ambience of sophistication. Guests can choose from secluded beach villas nestled among lush foliage, breathtaking water villas overlooking the Indian Ocean or enchanting tented jungle villas that offer an escape into nature.
- Culinary journeys are equally enchanting, with haute local and international cuisine showcased at the all-day dining haven, Raha Market. The views from the beach here are breathtaking. Explore further to Kata, the over-water Japanese restaurant, and Azure, where the abundance of fresh seafood is showcased alongside daily local catches. The enchanting all-bamboo poolside bar, Onu Onu, is a haven for classic and innovative cocktails, complemented by delicious light bites.
- Inspired by its surroundings, the esteemed Willow Stream Spa channels the innate power of natural elements to create treatments that nurture the body, mind and spirit. Carefully selected to reflect the local island culture, these treatments incorporate ancient Ayurvedic aromatherapy and Kerstin Florian's rejuvenating spa range to create a sensory journey of renewal.
- The resort offers a range of unique experiences. From a romantic picnic for two on a nearby secluded island to sunset dolphin cruises aboard a private yacht, as well as an exhilarating array of water sports, Fairmont Maldives, Sirru Fen Fushi ensures that every guest's every wish is fulfilled against the backdrop of this luxurious haven.
